Request for Reasonable Accommodation

The Genetic Information Nondiscrimination Act of 2008 (GINA) prohibits employers and other entities covered by GINA Title II from requesting or requiring genetic information of an individual or family member of the individual, except as specifically allowed by this law. To comply with this law, we are asking that you not provide any genetic information when responding to this request for medical information. ‘Genetic Information’, as defined by GINA, includes an individual’s family medical history, the results of an individual’s or family member’s genetic tests, the fact that an individual or an individual’s family member sought or received genetic services, and genetic information of a fetus carried by an individual or an individual’s family member or an embryo lawfully held by an individual or family member receiving assistive reproductive services.

A. Questions to help determine whether an employee has a disability.
For reasonable accommodation under ADA, an employee has a disability if he or she has an impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities or a record of such an impairment. The following questions may help determine whether an employee has a disability.
Please review the attached job description (If no job description is attached, please discuss the position with the employee to determine essential job functions.) Is the employee able to perform the essential job functions of this position with or without accommodation? If yes , please continue to the next question. If no , how long will the employee be unable to perform the essential functions of this position? _____ # of weeks _____ # of months _____ Permanently	Yes <input type="checkbox"/>	No <input type="checkbox"/>
Does the employee have a physical or mental impairment?	Yes <input type="checkbox"/>	No <input type="checkbox"/>
If yes, what is the impairment or the nature of the impairment?

Answer the following question based on what limitations the employee has when his or her condition is in an active state and what limitations the employee would have if no mitigating measures were used. Mitigating measures include things such as medication, medical supplies, equipment, hearing aids, mobility devices, the use of assistive technology, reasonable accommodations or auxiliary aids or services, prosthetics, learned behavioral or adaptive neurological modifications, psychotherapy, behavioral therapy, and physical therapy. Mitigating measures do not include ordinary eyeglasses or contact lenses.

Does the impairment substantially limit a major life activity as compared to most people in the general population?

Yes

No

Note: Does not need to significantly or severely restrict to meet this standard. It may be useful in appropriate cases to consider the condition under which the individual performs the major life activity; the manner in which the individual performs the major life activity; and/or the duration of time it takes the individual to perform the major life activity, or for which the individual can perform the major life activity.

or, describe the employee's limitations when the impairment is active.

B. Questions to help determine whether an accommodation is needed.

An employee with a disability is entitled to a reasonable accommodation only when the accommodation is needed because of the disability. The following questions may help determine whether the requested accommodation is needed because of the disability:

What limitation(s) is interfering with job performance or accessing a benefit of employment?

What essential job function(s) or benefits of employment is the employee having trouble performing or accessing because of the limitation(s)? How do the employee's limitation(s) interfere with his/her ability to perform the essential job function(s) or access a benefit of employment?

How long will the employee need the reasonable accommodation? If you are unable to provide a date, when will he or she be medically re-evaluated?

C. Questions to help determine effective accommodation options.

If an employee has a disability and needs an accommodation because of the disability, the employer must provide a reasonable accommodation, unless the accommodation poses an undue hardship. The following questions may help determine effective accommodations:

Do you have any suggestions regarding possible accommodations to improve the employee's ability to perform the essential functions of the job? If so, what are they?

How would your suggestions improve the employee's ability to perform the essential functions of the job?
